Seminar Schedule

1:00pm - 2:00pm Meeting Room B

“Smart Sensory Evaluation Technology”

Carol Schneider, Alpha MOS

Learn about the latest in 'state-of-the-art' equipment, to help your products meet the same quality standards time after time, through shelf life analysis, batch to batch consistency, validation of raw materials, taste matching & masking, competitive benchmarking, correlation to sensory data, and packaging interactions.

This session will provide an overview of...

E-Nose, Electronic Noses, providing a global fingerprint of smell in the same way as the human nose.

E-Tongue, Electronic Tongues, helping you characterize the full taste of liquids or solids dissolved in liquids.

E-Eye, Electronic Eyes, detailing surface analysis, color & materials identification and allowing standardizing of visual appeal.

12:00 - 1:00 Meeting Room A

"Sugar Reduction: Meeting Retailer Demands"

Devon Durkee, Technical Sales Associate, Roquette Geneva

With the significant increase in rates of obesity and diabetes, it's no surprise that food manufacturers are actively seeking out new, healthful ingredients. Among recent trends, sugar reduction has emerged as a goal for "better for you" food formulations. Manufacturers have made recent strides to reduce sugar in confection and bakery products, however, Walmart's recent pledge to reduce sugar in products such as condiments is challenging the food industry to remove sugar from not so obvious sources. We'll take a look at current trends in the culinary segment, supporting the need for reducing hidden sugar in products such as condiments and sauces. Sugar reduction strategies will be explored, including polyols and high intensity sweeteners. It's possible for today's food scientist to formulate lower sugar products without sacrificing flavor.

12:00 - 1:00 Meeting Room B

"Cleaner, Leaner, Better: Powder Emulsifiers for Bakery Applications"

Rosa Regalado, General Manager, Palsgaard

Cake manufacturers today are challenged by their customers to deliver high quality cakes at low cost, and with consumer friendly labeling. Powder cake emulsifiers, produced through extrusion technology, can meet these new challenges, as well as providing convenience, security and low cost. With no known allergens, they can also be used in gluten free cake applications and can be added directly to the cake batter without prehydration, preparatory steps or product loss. This simple and effective procedure guarantees the best functionality. Fewer errors, less rework and no waste of emulsifier are major benefits. In addition, powdered emulsifiers can carry large amounts of oil, making it possible to replace hardened fats and trans-fats.

11:00 -12:00 Meeting Room A

"Pest vs Recall: Case Studies"

Chris Del Rossi, Sales Manager, JP Pest Services

Introducing The Three Blunders!

Retail/Wholesale Bakery (Destruction and Recall)

- Medical Device Facility (Recall)

Industrial Seafood Operation (Unchecked...would qualify for recall)

With Special guests....Woulda, Coulda and Shoulda!

11:00 - 12:00 Meeting Room B

"Innovative Food Preservation with Supercritical Carbon Dioxide"

Nicole Favreau, Research Chemist, Combat Feeding Directorate

Would your product be better if you could inactivate enzymes? extend shelf life?, inhibit microbial growth? This innovative processing technology is the result of Natick Soldier Research Center CFD's efforts and may significantly impact the future of non-thermal food preservation.

10:30 - 1:00 Meeting Rooms C-D

KALSEC WORKSHOP: FOOD FIGHT!

Don't worry...we won't really throw food at you...but we WILL make this workshop fun and educational!

Join the Kalsec team, where we'll offer a rotation of three stations so you can participate in your own Food Fight.

Station 1: Colors and the pH battle: In the world of colors, the shift to replace synthetics with naturals is on the rise...consumers want natural alternatives. But knowing how to use colors derived from natural sources in your application is critical; one key challenge is learning how pH can affect the hue you can achieve. Additionally, you'll learn how to incorporate natural colors into your food products, and what else to look for when selecting natural colors.

Station 2: This isn't your mother's spice cabinet At this station, you'll participate in a hands on demonstration that showcases how easy it is to select and use a liquid extract...Oleoresin or Aquaresin@... for your application (hey, what's an Aquaresin@??) Learn how easy it is to use extracts instead of traditional dehydrated spices and herbs, resulting in cost savings while providing you with flavor and color consistency in your finished food application.

Station 3: Combat Oxidation...with natural solutions Control oxidation and shelf life in your applications with natural antioxidant solutions. We'll have some demonstrations for you to taste, see and smell that show how flavor and color can be maintained.

If you're looking for a cleaner label for your product, natural antioxidant solutions are the way to go!
